

Andy Mackenzie and Bob Middlemiss

Andy Mackenzie and Bob Middlemiss flew Spitfires together in late 1943. Both of them flew F-86s together years later. In September 2001, two days before terrorists would bring down the World Trade Centre, Mackenzie and Middlemiss made the annual trip to the home of Ian Ormston, for the Canadian Fighter Pilots' Association Reunion. As Commanding Officer 403 Squadron Dean Black joined the pilots, to present all of them who had flown with 403 during the Second World War, a copy of the newly published squadron history book, on the occasion of the squadron's 60th anniversary. In the photo it should be clear that both Mackenzie and Middlemiss had a great deal of fighter pilot advice for the helicopter pilot squeezed in the middle. Lest We Forget
